Pandora is one of many moons it orbits the planet Polythemus which is as big as Saturn. Pandora is enticed in plant and animal life of which humanoid creatures (Na'vi) and hexapod animals live and thrive. One of the hexapods (6 limbed animal) is a jellyfish like creature called the Woodsprite, it is a seed from the Tree of Souls.

Appearance.

The Woodsprite is a seed with bioluminescent qualities which means it glows in the dark or at night. It has a small sunflower seed shaped body and is similar to a deep sea jellyfish. It has long tentacles with octopus like suction pads on the backs of them. A colourful glow reflects off of the Woodsprite creating a light source so that the Woodsprite can see where it is going.

Feeding.

The Woodsprite seeds on sticky, golden sap from trees, it also eats microorganisms that float around in the air. The Woodsprite likes to eat seaweed as well. It often enjoys searching for shrubs and when it finds the shrub it will tear the leaves off and eat them. The Woodsprite is an omnivore because it also enjoys eating small bugs and insects.

Other Information.

Woodsprites are spirits, and they are very pure and sacred to the Na'vi. They are a seed from the Tree of Souls which is also a very sacred thing to the Na'vi. Woodsprites move like jellyfish but float like a dandelion. They also hold a ritual, the Na'vi humanoids all gather around the Tree of Souls and worship the Woodsprites. The Woodsprites are the calmest animals on Pandora, they love to rest after a long day. They also live under water and occasionally pop out to say hello.

Pandora is a whole new world, full of mystical and magical plants and animals waiting to be discovered! Would you like to go to Pandora?
